

REASON TO BE CONCERNED?

A family of seven children, with two different fathers, is in contextual family support. They are considered a multi-problem family. There are financial problems and debts, signs of neglect and of school advice being ignored, and there is a lack of hygiene. There's no contact with the father of the elder children. The other father only fetches the children now and then for short visits.

The eldest son of 19 is very active sexually. He's been in a relationship with Samantha for a week now. During a house visit, the mother of the family mentions that the couple has very loud sex. 'At least he's getting some', she adds casually.

REASON FOR CONCERN?

